moved from the projects to the podium by not letting society decide his fate. He joined the United States Marine Corps at an early age to gain structure in his life. In the Marine Corps, he met Sgt. Green, who was his first "father figure." He was the first male model to inspire him and believe in his potential.

After he left the Marine Corps (honorable discharge) he became a local law enforcement officer for ten years. Steve later started his own business with Ameriplan Health and Dental. This is where he discovered that his true passion was team building and motivating others to achieve their goals.

His passion lead him to write a book called "10 to Win." Where he shares ten tips to become the best version of yourself.

The "10 to Win" list goes as follows:

1. Scream the Dream - Vocalize your dream to gain accountability and encourage others to do so
2. I'm not hungry - Become so fully involved and passionate with your job that you forget to eat
3. Push or Pull - In terms of leadership, do you push (around) or pull (up) your team members.
4. Pump your breaks (Slow Down) - Understand your goal before planning the execution
5. Try Not - Stay focused and know how to push your limits
6. Find a New Room - Always try to be around people that are smarter than you
7. No One's Watching - Of the 14 top leadership traits from the USMC, the most important trait is INTEGRITY
8. Gold v. Platinum - Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Platinum Rule: "Do unto others how they want to be treated"
9. Jump - Just go for it!
10. The Main Thing - Understand how to prioritize your life with god as number one, family as number two and business as number three!
